The problem is that dynamically allocating them and assigning them values isn't making much sense. I've got a constructor that assigns them and sets them, but as I have more than one class I'd have to duplicate the code: The constructor and the set function: int Calloc(int rows, int columns); void Set(int carr_data, int rows, int columns) { carr_data = Calloc(rows, columns); } My main class: int main() { myClass *obj = new myClass; int data = obj->GetInts(); obj->Set(data, 6, 7); return 0; } void myClass::Set(int carr_data, int rows, int columns) { carr_data = Calloc(rows, columns); }

In order to install this software, you should install one or more compatible products from KNetWare. If you don't have those softwares yet, you can find out on where to download them online. Next FlipBook Maker Pro (also known as Next FlipBook App) it's an application from BrainCraft which tries to simplify the creation of web books. Although you can create normal books (magazine, brochure, etc...), the real interest here is the creation of flipbooks. You can create flipbooks with two different approaches: HTML5 (with the users having access to a good range of free templates) or Flash (with the users having access to a good range of commercial templates). If you want to have your flipbook online, you will have to choose the cloud hosting (Bubblicious) or the local storage (your computer's hard disk). Next FlipBook Maker Pro Features: * Create flipbooks from simple pages to complex, user-friendly magazines * Choose between the traditional HTML format and an alternative HTML5/Flash rich format * Create all types of flipbooks: magazines, brochures, apps, ebook, magazine, flat book, ad book, etc... * Choose between a variety of pre-designed templates or you can even design your own * Flipbook in different languages * Insert all sorts of graphics * Choose from a wide range of button styles * Choose between a full-screen interface or a windowed interface * Resize your pages to fit your needs * Choose between a few layouts for the navigation menu * Choose between a few themes to make your flipbook look more attractive * Choose to hide/show specific parts of the template * Hide/show navigation bar/footer * Restricted security (password protection) on your flipbooks * Add and remove any section of the flipbook easily and quickly * Add and remove text from a section of your flipbook * Add and remove a logo from the middle of the flipbook * Insert hyperlinks (including a personal logo) * Link to a specific page of the flipbook (including a personal logo) * Link to a specific page of the flipbook (including a personal logo) * Link to a specific page of the flipbook (including a personal logo) * Link to a specific page of the flipbook (including a personal logo) * Link to a specific page of the
